* PRESS RELEASE *
November 5, 2013 Consolidated Election
Final Unofficial Election Night Results

At 11:20 p.m., the San Bernardino Elections Office released its final unofficial election night results for the 2013 Consolidated Election. The next set of results will be released on Thursday, November 7th, 2013 at 4:00 p.m. That set of results will include approximately 5,056 additional ballots including, mail ballots received at polling places on Election Day, ballots cast at polling places on Election Day that were damaged and duplicated, and ballots from military and overseas voters. Final certified election results will be released on Wednesday, November 13, 2013 at 4:00 p.m. The final certified results will include approximately 521 provisional ballots that were cast on Election Day.

"Voter turnout for this election was less than we expected" said San Bernardino County Registrar of Voters, Michael Scarpello. "Despite that disappointment, we had a very smooth election with virtually no problems at the polls and quick election night returns."

While Election Night results for the 2013 Consolidated Election were completed at 11:20 p.m., Election Day results for the much anticipated City of San Bernardino contests were completed by the 10:00 p.m. posting. Though, the summary reports generated by the vendor reporting software used by the Elections Office showed that some precincts were not yet counted at 10:00 p.m., those precincts have very little, or no voters, assigned to them and no ballots were cast in them.
